

Baldwin Park, CA, February 2014 –

The Cyranose® 320 is scheduled to be featured in an episode of the prime-time British television series “Gadget Man” in the fall of 2014.

The episode “The Restaurant of the Future” will investigate how new technologies are contributing to every aspect of food production and use. The segment using the Cyranose® 320 is based on a potential future application for sensor devices to assess the quality of beverages and/or food by consumers in real-time, for example at a restaurant table.

The Cyranose® 320 has been featured in various other television segments including the popular crime series “CSI”. Contact Sensigent at sales@sensigent.com for more information on the Cyranose® 320